Location

Empuriabrava – The Little Venice of Spain on the Gulf of Roses
Empuriabrava, often referred to as the "Little Venice of Spain," is beautifully situated on the Gulf of Roses. Developed from a marshland into one of Europe's premier water sports centers over the past 40 years, it is a Mediterranean paradise inspired by Florida's vacation destinations. What sets Empuriabrava apart are its numerous villas and holiday homes, many of which feature private gardens, garages, and direct access to picturesque canals. Many properties come with private boat docks, allowing boats to be moored right outside the front door. Empuriabrava boasts Europe's largest marina, stretching over 30 kilometers of navigable canals and offering more than 5,000 boat moorings. An intricate system of roads and waterways ensures that many properties can be reached both by car and by boat. The sandy Platja d'Empuriabrava beach, approximately 1.6 kilometers long, is one of the widest on the Costa Brava and features a gently sloping shoreline perfect for relaxed beach days.

Nearby, the city of Figueres, Salvador Dalí's birthplace, is home to the renowned Dalí Museum, while the picturesque fishing village of Cadaqués offers charming, winding white streets. Surrounding Empuriabrava is a 5,000-hectare nature reserve that preserves the region's natural beauty and invites exploration. Empuriabrava perfectly combines modern comfort, natural beauty, and a diverse range of recreational activities—making it an ideal location for an unforgettable stay on the Costa Brava..
